Hualapai Tribe Uses Bipartisan Infrastructure Law Funding to Implement LiDAR in Natural Resource Management

Submitted by: Melvin Hunter, Jr. | Hualapai Tribal Forestry & Wildland Fire Management

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR / OFFICE OF WILDLAND FIRE

INTERIOR/WILDLAND FIRE

Fuels Management in Arizona

The Bipartisan Infrastructure Law, passed in November 2021, include historic investments in fuels management across America's forests, rangelands, and grasslands.

The U.S. Department of the Interior, through the Bipartisan Infrastructure Law, is investing nearly $18 million in Arizona during fiscal year 2023 to reduce wildfire risk. This investment will be leveraged with Interior's annual funding and help implement the Department's Five-year Monitoring, Maintenance, and Treatment Plan.

Climate change is driving the devastating intersection of extreme heat, drought, and wildfires across the United States. Increasingly extreme wildfires result in billions of dollars in economic losses, damage to natural resources, devastation to communities, and the tragic loss of human life.

The Bipartisan Infrastructure Law provides an additional $1.5 billion over five years for the U.S. Department of the Interior to expand efforts to reduce wildfire risk, prepare for wildfire response, support post-fire rehabilitation, and invest in fire science. This includes an additional $878 million to reduce the risk from wildfires by improving ecosystem health and removing vegetation that can fuel fires. These efforts may include cutting and removing hazardous vegetation, chemically treating invasive species, and using prescribed fire.

These fuels management efforts support local communities by reducing wildfire risk and employing Tribal members, youth, and veterans. Additionally, the Interior Department continues to leverage valuable partnerships with state and local governments, Tribes, and the private sector. These partnerships are essential to further mitigate wildfire risk.

 Funding for projects in Arizona came from both regular allocations and Bipartisan Infrastructure Law.

Hualapai Tribe use Bipartisan Infrastructure Law Funding to Implement LiDAR for Effective Fuels Management

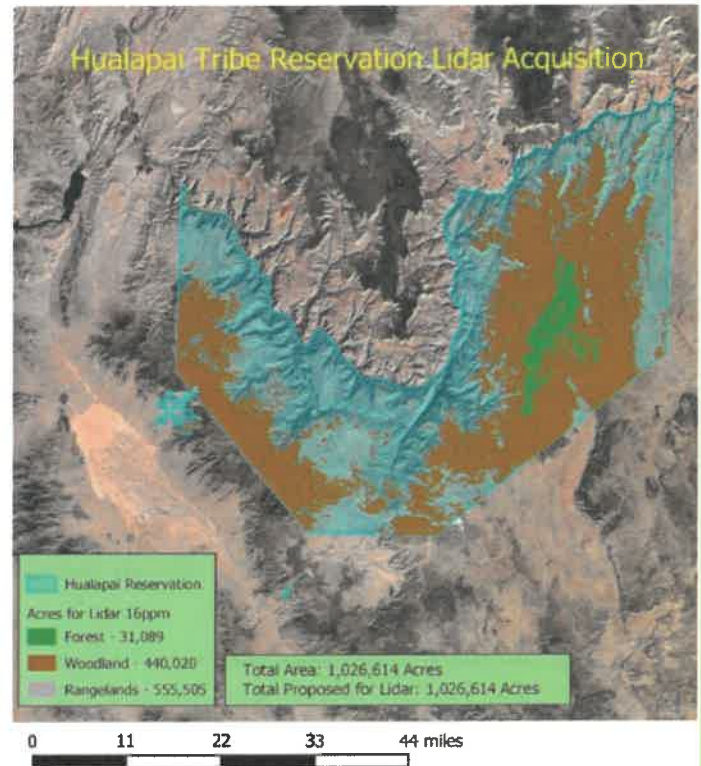

The Hualapai (People of the Tall Pine) Tribe, northwest Arizona, have a land base that encompasses over a million acres and four primary fuel types: timber, woodland, grassland, and riparian. In 2022, approximately $1.9 million of the Bipartisan Infrastructure Law funding was provided to the Tribe for a 5-year project called Jump Start. The project is using Light Detection and Ranging (LiDAR) technology to capture 3D imagery of the Tribe's vegetation, infrastructure, watersheds, and topography to help the Tribe with numerous current and future projects.

High-resolution LiDAR data was collected over the reservation between October and November 2022 along with simultaneous 12-inch resolution color imagery. These data will support creation of a virtual/digital twin of the entire landscape including roads, streams, forest and woodland inventories, and fire risk maps. These tools support real-time resource condition information and are calibrated by field data collection.

When the LiDAR data is received this spring, the Tribe's Forestry and Wildland Fire Management staff will use the data to identify stand density (volume/diameter distribution), ecotones, and update vegetated acreage. The data will support identification of project types and priorities for Forest Development, Timber, and Fuels Management programs. It will further provide Wildland Fire Management with the ability to identify acreage at high-risk of wildfire and support strategic planning from the perspective of fire spread/containment and efficient resource use planning and preparedness.

Interest in LiDAR grew within the Hualapai Tribe as a collaborative effort in discussing technology use and included other non-natural resource teams such as Public Works, Cultural Resources, and Tribal leadership. The Tribe's Department of Natural Resources provided insightful perspectives in bringing these teams of varying interests together to gain informed decisions on the use and potential applications of new technology to support multiple objectives for the Hualapai Tribe.

"We are pleased to have the continued support from Hualapai tribal council, Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) Western Region, BIA Division of Wildland Fire Management, and Northwest Management, Inc. We are all looking forward to the data and tools to be provided as well as our ideas of what to expect. We also realize this technology offers opportunities and collaborations beyond what we currently see, and the Hualapai Tribe is eager to explore and grow these."

Joe Biden designates Avi Kwa Ame a national monument

Joe Biden designates Avi Kwa Ame a national monument

“It’s a place of reverence, it’s a place of spirituality, it’s a place of healing and now it will be recognized for its significance it holds and be preserved forever,” Biden said.

President Joe Biden announced on Tuesday Avi Kwa Ame as a national monument in Nevada, following up on a promise he made in late 2022.

Biden also declared a national monument in Texas and the creation of a marine sanctuary in U.S. waters near the Pacific Remote Islands southwest of Hawaii.

Biden spoke at the White House Conservation in Action Summit at the Interior Department with Fort Mojave Indian Tribal Chairman Timothy Williams commending him during his introduction.

“Under his leadership we have a seat at the table and we are seeing an unprecedented era and opportunity for our tribal communities,” Williams said. “And we are all grateful to the president for taking historic action to combat the climate crisis and conserve and restore our nation’s land and waters.”

Williams was among the proponents to make Avi Kwa Ame, also known as Spirit Mountain, a national monument. It’s considered sacred to the Mojave people and for the nine other Yuman-speaking tribes along the Colorado River, as well as the Hopi and Chemehuevi Paiute tribes, Williams said.

The site in southern Nevada spans more than 500,000 acres near the Arizona and California state lines. It’s home to bighorn sheep, desert tortoises and a large concentration of Joshua trees, some of which are more than 900 years old. It’s also listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

It took more than three months for Biden to make the announcement.

“It’s a place of reverence, it’s a place of spirituality, it’s a place of healing and now it will be recognized for its significance it holds and be preserved forever,” Biden said. “I look forward to visiting it myself.”

He thanked Williams and the legislative leaders who advocated for Avi Kwa Ame including Nevada Rep. Dina Titus, Democrat, who sponsored a bill to protect the rugged region near the Mojave National Preserve from development, including solar farms and a proposed wind farm.

“To the native people who point to Avi Kwa Ame as their spiritual birthplace, and every Nevadan who knows the value of our cherished public lands: Today is for you," Titus tweeted.

The Honor Avi Kwa Ame coalition, which includes tribes, local residents, state lawmakers and conservation groups, said its members were "overjoyed" to learn the site will be a new national monument.

"Together, we will honor Avi Kwa Ame today — from its rich Indigenous history, to its vast and diverse plant and wildlife, to the outdoor recreation opportunities created for local cities and towns in southern Nevada by a new gorgeous monument right in their backyard," the group said.

Interior Secretary Deb Haaland released a press release praising the announcement.

"I am grateful to President Biden for taking this important step in recognition of the decades of advocacy from tribes and the scientific community, who are eager to protect the objects within its boundaries," Haaland stated. "Together with tribal leaders, outdoor enthusiasts, local elected officials, and other stakeholders, we will manage this new monument for the benefit of current and future generations."

In Texas, Biden plans to create the Castner Range National Monument in El Paso. It's the ancestral homeland of the Comanche and Apache people, and its cultural ecology is considered sacred to several Indigenous communities.

The designation will protect the cultural, scientific and historic objects found within the monument's boundaries, honor U.S. veterans, service members and tribal nations, and expand access to outdoor recreation on public lands, the White House said.

Located on Fort Bliss, Castner Range served as a training and testing site for the U.S. Army during World War II, the Korean War and the Vietnam War. The Army ceased training at the site and closed Castner Range in 1966.

The Castner Range monument "will preserve fragile lands already surrounded on three sides by development," help ensure access to clean water and protect rare and endangered species, said Rep. Veronica Escobar, Democrat-Texas.

"The people of El Paso have fought to protect this for 50 years. Their work has finally paid off," Biden said.

Biden designated his first national monument, in Colorado, last year. In 2021, he restored the boundaries for Bears Ears National Monument in Utah after they were significantly narrowed by President Donald Trump, a Republican.

In the Pacific, Biden will direct the Commerce Department to consider initiating a new national marine sanctuary designation within 30 days to protect all U.S. waters around the Pacific Remote Islands. If completed, the 777,000 square miles, southwest of Hawaii, will help ensure the U.S. reaches Biden's goal to conserve at least 30 percent of ocean waters under U.S. jurisdiction by 2030, the White House said.

Among Hawaiian state leaders, Biden thanked Native Hawaiian leaders who "worked tirelessly to protect our oceans. I want to thank you. I genuinely mean it, it wouldn't have happened without you."

Biden also announced a series of steps to conserve, restore and expand access to public lands and waters across the country, the White House said.

The proposals seek to modernize management of America's public lands, harness the power of the ocean to help fight climate change, and better conserve wildlife corridors. Biden also will announce new spending to improve access to outdoor recreation, promote tribal conservation and reduce wildfire risk.

Biden added he's committed to working with tribal leaders and legislative leaders on bringing "healthy and abundant" salmon run back to the Colorado River system.

"There's nothing beyond our capacity if we work together," Biden said.

DISPATCHERS: Kyra Benson, Cheyenne Majenty, Eric Latrell, Samantha Stratten, Charolette Stevens, Arturo Salazar, Valen Quasula, Morgan Manakaja, Calvin Putesoy and often including countless hours of coverage from Duane Clarke, Shawana Havatone and Shaun Henson.

Thank you to all those ~~who~~ served as the original team of dispatchers for keeping our community safe!

Whanganui Iwi, New Zealand Visitors

Youth Council members listening to Māori presentations.

In collaboration with the Hualapai Cultural Center, the Youth Council welcomed the Whanganui Iwi, or Māori tribes from New Zealand to the Hualapai Nation on February 12th, 2023. The youth introduced themselves in the Hualapai language and wore their traditional regalia. During the cultural presentation, the Māori expressed their interest in the Colorado River and the Hualapai's relationship to the river. The Māori explained their struggle and fight for their river and came to visit the Colorado River Indian tribes in hopes to learn their ways of managing the river. The youth tagged along on the trip to Diamond Creek where the Māori held a sacred water ceremony. After the trip, the group had dinner at the Diamond Creek Restaurant where they were able to experience Māori songs and dances along with a Haka dance. There were many similarities evident between the two cultures. The Youth Council learned, and shared, the same respect and concerns the Māori have for Mother Earth. It was a special day for everyone.

Healing Circle Training & UNITY Midyear Conference 2023

Pre-conference APS Healing Circle Training

On February 23rd, five members of the Youth Council attended the pre-conference APS Healing Circle training in Tempe, AZ. This was a five-hour training session where the theme was “Building Advocates to Heal Our Communities”. During the training, youth were asked to define what healing means to them, what are their medicines/strengths, and determining local resources within their communities. The youth were also asked to envision their “perfect community” and, based on community asset mapping, gave oral presentations on how they can achieve those goals. The youth learned how to rebuild a youth council and build community support after the global pandemic, gained youth feedback on the best ways to create community safety, how to host community asset mapping as a strength-based approach to community development, and how to facilitate difficult discussions on community challenges. Most importantly, the youth learned how to identify key community advocates and resources to strengthen youth council growth and sustainability and became empowered in becoming more civically minded and strengthening their responsibility in the Hualapai tribe through service projects.

UNITY Midyear Conference 2023

Youth Council at UNITY Midyear 2023

Five youth council members attended the UNITY Midyear Conference. Beforehand, the Youth Council voted to take the five who complete the most community service hours to the conference. Youth Council President and 2nd Secretary, Sunny Wakayuta and Brannon Whatoname, served as the National Unity Council (NUC) representatives for the Hualapai Tribal Youth Council in the NUC Business Meeting. Each day, the youth broke into curriculum sessions based on strengthening advocacy in their communities. According to UNITY, this was the biggest midyear attendance on record, with about 500 youth and 100 advisors. The youth participated in cultural activities such as the O'odham Cu:dk Social Dance and the UNITY Round Dance. They also participated in bird singing and dancing. Two of the youth council members were able to meet producer Jhane Myers (Prey), Actress Amber Midthunder (Prey), and Casting Director Angelique Midthunder. A couple of the youth took a healthy risk to participate in public speaking at the conference. Marian introduced herself at Miss Teen Hualapai 2023 to UNITY, and Breanna participated as an emcee for the conference, speaking during the closing assembly and introducing special guests Apache Skateboards. The group of five were able to work together to develop a plan on advocacy and finding and utilizing available resources to combat issues they've identified to be particularly difficult, but important, issues in the community. The Youth Council cannot wait to provide and implement the strategies and plans developed at the conference in the community.

COMMUNITY MESSAGES

Tribute to Brodie "Broda" Barnes Clark

Submitted by: Harriet Hinman | Hualapai Tribal Member

TRIBUTE TO Brodie "Broda" BARNES CLARK - June 5, 1944 - January 12, 2023

Today as we greet the Son, we give thanks for the gift of life and community with each of our Hualapai people. My name is Harriet Smith Hinman, the daughter of Evelyn "Grover" Smith & Ernie Smith (now deceased). Please allow me to share special thoughts of Cousin Brodie and for the three that traveled over 3,200 miles to share their love and support for Brodie, his family and to represent the Hualapai people as One.

Brodie lived in Pawnee, Oklahoma. My family and I live in Tulsa, Oklahoma. During the last 40 years we have been able to visit with Brodie at Pow Wows, Special Events, the Clinic and at Church. Brodie would always like to talk in Hualapai and taught my daughter beadwork. My son and Brodie would always talk about sports and enjoyed looking eye-eye with each other because they were both 6'4" tall! Brodie always had a smile for everyone, was encouraging, told jokes and was well known for his friendliness. He worked at Oklahoma State University for many years and almost every person there, students & staff, knew Brodie because of his jokes and kindness!

We visited with Brodie at the hospital on Sunday in Tulsa, Oklahoma, three days before he went on his homeward journey. We listened to Hualapai songs laughed and joked about everything. As we left the hospital, we all prayed together and we told him we would visit him after he was transferred to Stillwater on Monday. Now, we will wait to visit him in Heaven one day.

When we received word of Brodie's leaving, I talked with cousin Serena asking if anyone from Peach Springs would be able to come to the funeral. Brodie's sister, Ernestine, Sonya and Serena made the 1,600 mile trip for a total round trip of 3,200 miles.

It's simply amazing how God basically "parted the Red Sea" for them, both coming to Oklahoma and returning to the Rez because their journey was quick and there was bad snowy, cold weather both ways but they prayed and journeyed onward! There were 6+ of us Hualapais at Brodie's farewell: Ernestine, Sonya, Serena, myself and my daughter, Theresa and my son, Herb plus Brodie's children and grandchildren.

It is an honor to be Hualapai and to know we were there for Brodie. Sister Ernestine, Sonya and Serena traveled through cold weather and snow, day and night to be here for Brodie. That is love and the Hualapai Warrior spirit people witnessed here in Oklahoma. Hualapai people should be proud and thankful our Hualapai Warrior, Brodie, had his people with him. Brodie was a U.S. Army (Artillery Division) Veteran. Needless to say, he was a proud Christian Hualapai warrior.

Brodie was preceded in death by his parents Taft and Eunice Clark, sisters Janice Marie Begay, Jennifer Clark, Rowena Rena Clark, brothers Elmer Clark, Enos Taft Clark, Rudolph 'Rudy' Clark, Dr. Frank Clark of California and stepbrother Anthony Wheeler. Being a proud and humble man Brodie is a descendant of Chief Hualapai Charley, Brodie's great grandfather. Being members of the Hualapai Tribe his father, Taft Clark was a member of the Chloride Band and his mother, Eunice Kaiser Clark was of the Big Sandy Band. He was married to Starry Lois for 52 years and they had three sons: Wallace Gene, Lawrence James and Aaron Anthony: Four grandsons and one great grandson.

In closing, my thoughts are that we should remember our elders and each other for the tie that binds each of us through the bloodlines of our Hualapai tribe. My mom always said that no matter how far a Hualapai travels, their heart will always hold dear their heritage and not forget the cry of our people. The greatest bloodline is with God, our Creator and the blood of Jesus Christ, which empowers us to know with peace that we will meet again.

Inspirational & Encouragement Corner
Submitted by: Josie Powsey | Hualapai Tribal Elder

Gam yuh? I read a passage sometime ago so I would like to share this:

(Good Thinking)

Barely the day started and... it's already six in the evening.

Barely arrived on Monday and its already Friday;
 and the month is already over, and the year is almost over, and already 40, 50, or 60 years of our lives have passed, and we realize that we lost our parents, friends and we realize it's too late to go back.

So... let's try, despite everything to enjoy the remaining time. Lets keep looking for activities that we like. Let's put some color in our grey.

Let's smile at little things in our life that put balm in our hearts. And despite everything, we must continue to enjoy with serenity, this time we have left. Let's try to eliminate the after's...

I'm doing it after... I'll say it after...

I'll think about it after.

We leave everything for later like "after" is ours.

Because what we don't understand is that...

Afterwards, the coffee is cold...

Afterwards, priorities change...

Afterwards, the charm is broken...

Afterwards, health passes...

Afterwards, the kids are grown up...

Afterwards, parents get old...

Afterwards, promises are forgotten...

Afterwards, the day becomes the night...

Afterwards... life ends

And then its often too late...

So... let's leave nothing for later...

Because still waiting, see you later,

we can lose the best moments!

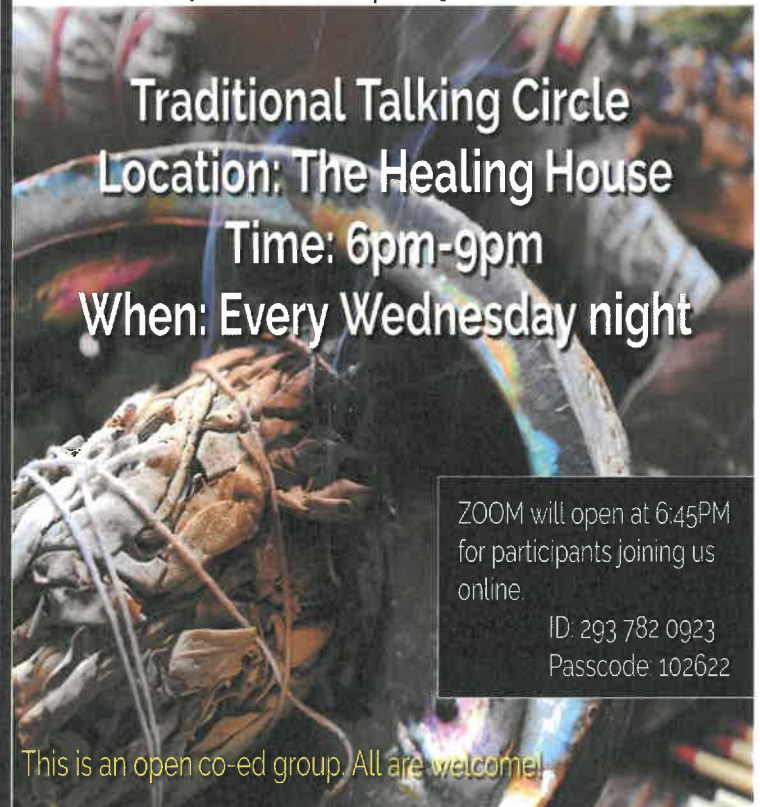

The best experience, best friends, the best family!!

So... the day is TODAY! The moment is NOW!

And this is Good Thinking!

Choose to be kind,
 Many are facing difficult times filled with uncertainty and sadness.
 If you can add joy to someone's life,
 do it because what you give, you receive!
 It's the circle of life! Amen!
 Have a blessed day. Put your eyes on Jesus!
 He is a way maker!
